EXHIBIT 21

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the title "AT&T FamilyMap - Help". The address bar displays the URL "https://familymap.wireless.att.com/finder-att-family/helpContent.htm?topic=5". The page features the AT&T logo and the "FamilyMap" text. A "Sign In" link is located in the top right corner. The main content area is titled "help" and includes a "locating" section. This section contains three links: "> How do I use AT&T FamilyMap from my phone?", "> Can AT&T FamilyMap locate a lost or stolen phone?", and "> Why don't I always get a location?". The first link is expanded, showing a text box that reads: "AT&T FamilyMap has a mobile browser application that allows you to locate your family members from any mobile phone. Simply enter familymap.att.com into your mobile browser and sign in with the same phone number and password you use to access AT&T FamilyMap from your computer." Below this text is a "Note: Data use rates apply." The second and third links are also expanded, showing text boxes that describe the limitations of the service. The second link's text box reads: "AT&T FamilyMap uses several different techniques to locate a phone. However, given all of these techniques, geographic conditions and phone limitations can still result in inaccurate locations. Common poor geographic conditions and phone limitations include:" followed by a bulleted list: "• The phone that you are trying to locate is deep inside a building or car.", "• The phone is surrounded by tall buildings, hills, or trees.", "• The phone is powered off.", "• The phone's battery has run out.", "• The phone is not in AT&T network coverage.", and "• Service on the particular line/number has been terminated or suspended." The third link's text box reads: "By design, certain phones are more limited in providing accurate locations. For specific information on how to create". At the bottom of the page, there are links for "Corporate Website", "Help", "Privacy Policy", and "Terms of Use". The footer contains the copyright notice "©2009 AT&T Intellectual Property" and "©2009 Wavemarket".

> Can AT&T FamilyMap locate a lost or stolen phone?

> Why don't I always get a location?

AT&T FamilyMap uses several different techniques to locate a phone. However, given all of these techniques, geographic conditions and phone limitations can still result in inaccurate locations. Common poor geographic conditions and phone limitations include:

- The phone that you are trying to locate is deep inside a building or car.
- The phone is surrounded by tall buildings, hills, or trees.
- The phone is powered off.
- The phone's battery has run out.
- The phone is not in AT&T network coverage.
- Service on the particular line/number has been terminated or suspended.

By design, certain phones are more limited in providing accurate locations. For specific information on how to create
